

Past and Present Proceedings of the XXI World Congress of the International: A Comprehensive Historical Record

The XXI World Congress of the International Association of Geomagnetism and Aeronomy (IAGA) was held in The Hague, Netherlands, from 29 August to 6 September 2019. The Congress brought together over 1,000 scientists from 60 countries to discuss the latest advances in geomagnetism and aeronomy.

The Proceedings of the XXI World Congress of the IAGA are now available in two volumes. Volume 1 contains the invited and contributed papers presented at the Congress, while Volume 2 contains the abstracts of all the posters presented.

The Proceedings provide a comprehensive overview of the current state of research in geomagnetism and aeronomy. The papers cover a wide range of topics, including:

- The Earth's magnetic field
- The ionosphere and thermosphere
- The magnetosphere
- Solar-terrestrial physics
- Geomagnetism and aeronomy in space exploration

The Proceedings are an essential resource for anyone interested in the latest advances in geomagnetism and aeronomy. They are also a valuable historical record of the XXI World Congress of the IAGA.
